THERE are twenty well-built towns in Kansas without a single inhabitant to waken the echoes of their deserted streets. Saratoga has a thirty-thousand dollar Opera-house, a large hotel, a twenty-thousand-dollar schoolhouse and a number of fine business houses and yet there is nobody to even claim a place to sleep. At Fargo a twenty-thousand-dollar schoolhouse stands on the side of the hill, a monument to the bond-voting craze. A herder and his family are the sole population of what was once an incorporated city. This is a sad commentary on unhealthy booms.

WANTS TO LOCATE IN MAYSVILLE

A Manufacturing Concern Will Move Here if Inducements are Offered.

Opportunities have time and again been offered to citizens of Maysville of investing in manufactories and other enterprises, which could have but resulted beneficially to our city and community, the investors at the same time realizing a liberal percentage on their capital, but from a lack of concentrated public spirit so essential to a live and progressive modern city, we have allowed these same opportunities to slip by us. Other cities around us, some of them of less consequence and of less wealth than Maysville, have taken advantage of them, and have reaped the reward.

They have encouraged the companies seeking to locate among them in every reasonable way. Instead of placing obstacles in their path they have striven to remove them. They have held out the most liberal inducements, both municipal and individual.

The facilities and advantages Maysville possesses as a manufacturing center are wonderful when one will stop to consider them. We can procure every convertible staple as easily as any city in Kentucky or on the Ohio river. As a shipping point, what town is ahead of us? As a place of residence, where can one be found more desirable? As far as money is concerned we have that for sale. Maysville is all right in every respect save one—she wants literally to "get a move on herself."

It is not the wish of THE LEDGER to start a fictitious boom, nor to advocate the useless squandering of time and money in bartering with slop-shop factories or every penny-in-the-slot man who comes along with a scheme on hand. We want to deal with facts not theories. We want every dollar of Maysville capital invested where it will bring most in return to the investor and do most for the welfare of the city.

There is an establishment which now wishes to locate here which we think our citizens would do well to consider. We have faith in it because we have faith in those who advocate it,—men who have done, are doing and will continue to do all in their power to promulgate the city's prosperity.

The Howe Ventilating Stove Co. is the establishment of which we wish to speak. This factory is at present at Tallapoosa, Ga., and wishing to become more centrally located and be where shipping facilities are better and where they can better compete with like concerns of the country, have selected Maysville as the point to which they would like to remove. All they want from us is the encouragement they can easily secure at some other place.

The capital stock of the company is $180,000, and they employ from 75 to 150 men, thus adding some five or six hundred to the population.

The inducements they ask are: That the city or the citizens thereof give them the necessary ground and erect thereon the buildings, the cost not to exceed $15,000. Or that the city take $50,000 first mortgage bonds. Other cities will do this and probably more for them. Why shouldn't we?

One enterprising citizen has promised the ground, and another is willing to invest $5,000 in the stock of the concern.

This is the proposition laid before our people. The good faith and correct standing of the company is guaranteed.

Let us reflect earnestly about the future of our city. Let us all pull together and place the old town where she is entitled to be, among the foremost cities of the Ohio Valley.

He then left, with a posse in pursuit. If caught he will be roughly handled.

AN EVENING BOATING PARTY.

Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Adamson Entertain Their Friends on the River.

The silver barge of the beautiful Queen of Egypt, as it floated with its precious burden down the silvery Nile, could not have been more beautiful than was the Laurence, with its living burden of happy people, as it left our wharf last evening.

Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Adamson had issued invitations for an Evening Boating Party, and very few of those invited refused.

Promptly at the hour the ropes were loosed and the steamer left, decked in gay bunting fore and aft, while from the masthead swung to the glorious breeze the stars and stripes. The deck was covered with canvas, which made a fine surface for dancing and to the sweet strains of the colored orchestra did the dancers trip.

Landing at a point some seven miles up the Ohio, elegant and refreshing ices and cakes were served, which were heartily relished by the guests.

Then the trip back home; and such a night! The Goddess of Night, with her sable mantle bedecked with myriad stars, looked down from her high throne approvingly upon the belles and beaux, and she alone can tell of sweetest words more sweetly spoken from hearts so full of youth.

The charming young ladies, in whose honor was this affair, were Miss Swigart of Cincinnati, who is the guest of Mrs. Lucy Keith of Front street, Miss Lottie Perrine of Tuckahoe, who is the guest of Mrs. E. P. Browning of West Second street.

Miss Lelia Wheeler, the sweet singer, whom we all are proud to own, ably assisted Mrs. Adamson in looking after the guests.

Mrs. Adamson was perfectly herself, thoroughly at ease with that cordial manner which tells one of olden hospitality, which by birth this lovely woman inherits.

I cannot pass to the end without mentioning the happy couples recently married. The sweet brides were there in greatest number, like the bouquet of buds 'tis not complete without the full blown roses. Just so this occasion. Let us add that, in future, these young couples just starting out upon life's sea, may they always lend their presence to the dance, their company to the young buds. Our society will be better and such occasions as last night will be made more enjoyable thereby.

At twelve o'clock the boat landed at the wharf and as good nights were said a grand chorus of voices rang out upon the midnight air such hearty cheers as to speak in manner more eloquent than words the charming time spent by all.

WILLIE McCUE, a young man 18 years old, and a son of James McCue, a prominent farmer living near Sharpsburg, attempted to commit suicide Saturday morning by taking two ounces of laudanum, but his act was discovered in time for the doctors to save his life. THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

Closing Proceedings of the Recent Convention at Flemingsburg.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

The meeting was taken charge of by Brother W. D. Rice and after a song service and prayer the different societies reported, each saying their society was getting along nicely and all seemed to be interested. The President delivered an enthusiastic address, the principal theme of which was the Pledge. He thoroughly explained it and made it so plain that nobody could help but understand it.

Dr. Hays made a few remarks in which he congratulated the young upon being in their youth in this 19th century. He spoke of the many privileges afforded them now which were not known fifty years ago. Brother Irvin carried out Dr. Hays's idea, clothing it in beautiful language and earnestness, then Dr. Hendrick talked awhile on the pledge and the young. He said he never intended being old and used Daniel as an illustration. Though he was 84 years of age he went to the window and prayed as when young. Brother Fant spoke for a short time and closed with asking for God's blessing upon all the Endeavorers.

SATURDAY EVENING.

The meeting convened at 7:30 and a short time was spent in prayer and song, then Brother W. S. Irvin addressed the congregation on "The Theme of the Endeavor Society," and after speaking awhile he recited a beautiful poem with a spirit and understanding, then continued by telling the effect of teaching on children and the lasting impression that it made, the mind being an indestructible member. He stated the sole agents of the human nature as being first, Inquisitiveness, second, Imitation and third Faith. He illustrated the first by Eve, and in reference to the second he said "that imitation is practically confined to monkeys and apes." The third, speaking of faith, he said each should have a model and let that model be Christ and the Church, expressing it "as the scroll is unrolled we behold our model and motto, 'for Christ and the Church.'" He impressed it upon us that a man should not be condemned until he is found faulty, also that Endeavor is the means by which the world is being built up for His work. "Search the Scriptures" is the ideal of each Endeavor Society. He said also that the missionary spirit showed that the work for Christ was increasing, and closing with words of thanksgiving, all joined in singing "Faith is a Victory."

SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

On account of the tardiness of the people the meeting did not begin exactly on time, as is one of the characteristics of the Endeavorers, but when it did begin the Endeavorers were in their places ready to take part in singing and listen to what was to be said. Brother Stanley delivered the address of the afternoon. He opened by saying he had no particular subject but expected to leave himself free to say what he desired. He said the thought which had come to his mind was that a great many persons would ask "If this is such a grand, noble work, why was it not begun sooner?" and he went on to say it was God's will that this work was not begun before—that the world was not in a condition for it. Just as the coal and gold ore in the mountains, so this power was in God undeveloped until now. The world wasn't prepared for it; it needed revolution and revolution means progress. He also expressed this as being the bud now, but there would be greater power, the Endeavor being a means to an end. He spoke of the young people being so enthusiastic and full of energy that they had to have something to do and if they weren't doing good it was the opposite, and now that the young have this work they are all the happier as the highest joy is in labor. After song 219 was sung Brother Rice conducted the Question Box and answered the questions precisely and satisfactorily.

SUNDAY EVENING.

It was the regular Consecration meeting of the Society and a large crowd assembled in the interest of the meeting. Miss Jessie Judd was requested to conduct this meeting which she did with self-possession and grace. Before beginning the regular services Brother Stanley suggested that Dr. Hendrick should offer a prayer for the sick in their community, then the leader opened the meeting with asking each to bow her head and offer a silent prayer for the same. All joined in singing "Hear us, O Father, while we pray," then Miss Judd read the lesson, Ixiii Psalm, the subject being "The Triumph of the Kingdom." A chain prayer was offered by Brothers Stanley, Cady and Orr, after which a song was sung. Then the Pledge was recited in concert as a consecration to the service of "Our Father." The active members took part, being interspersed with song and prayer, then after a short talk by Brother Rice and a song, the meeting was dismissed with the Endeavor Benediction.

Most of the Endeavorers met Monday morning at the train and now was the hardest part of all, the leave taking, but we parted, hoping to meet again in Carlisle at the next District Convention. Flemingsburg certainly has gained her reputation for entertaining, and may her praise be sounded for and near.
